

My thoughts on home learning in lockdown 2021

I wasn't really happy when I learned that we were going back into lockdown. I was more upset because I didn't have much help last time so I expected that it would be the same.

It was different because I had a table and it really helped with my work. Another difference was that the weather was snowy and cold which it wasn't in the lockdown before, this meant I could play outside in breaks and make sculptures in the snow.

Although I still found the work challenging, I liked it more in the most recent lockdown because I enjoyed more of the work that we covered. I enjoyed the online lessons due to the subjects that we were learning about which I found interesting.

I was quite sad about not talking to my friends in person but at least I could talk to them online which I have done for a while. Even though I got used to it, I would have still preferred seeing them in person but due to the current situation, this was not possible.

I would class myself as confident with google classroom as it was easy to understand within a week or two. I found handing in my work very simple because the steps were easy to follow.
